Presentation:

In its recommendations for the protection of people living in long term contaminated territories the International Commission on Radiological Protection (ICRP) emphasizes the effectiveness of directly involving the affected population and local professionals in the management of the situation, and the responsibility of authorities at both national and local levels to create the conditions and provide the means favouring the involvement and empowerment of the population.

In this perspective, ICRP initiated a dialogue in fall 2011 between representatives of the Fukushima Prefecture, local professionals, local communities and representatives of Belarusian, Norwegian and French organisations with direct experience in managing long-term consequences of the Chernobyl accident, to find ways to respond to the challenges of the long term rehabilitation of the living conditions in the affected territories by the Fukushima nuclear power plant.

The First Dialogue Meeting took place at the Fukushima Prefectural Council Hall on 26 and 27 November 2011. The participants emphasized the importance of re-establishing the affected communities with safe living conditions and quality food products, and solidarity with other communities. They also recognized the importance of developing radiation protection culture to allow inhabitants to understand and evaluate the information on the consequences of the accident and to take informed actions for reducing radiological exposure from living in the affected areas.

The objective of the Second Dialogue Meeting is to understand what has been accomplished so far in Date City to improve the radiological situation, to discuss the present obstacles and the possible ways to improve further the living conditions of the inhabitants of the City.

The meeting will be limited to around 30 participants at a central roundtable for discussions with open participants of local regions surrounding seats. The ICRP representative will serve as facilitators for the dialogue. Summary of the dialogue and recommendations will be made available to the Date

City, the local communities, the Fukushima Prefecture and the Japanese government. The meeting will be conducted both in English and in Japanese.
